POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The departure of Robert S. McNamara as defense secretary will be mourned by almost no one in the United States.

This observation, however, is not a fair measure of McNamara's worth in the office.

The Vietnam war is not popular and McNamara has long been a target of Americans who dislike the involvement. He has been the foremost target for criticism in the Johnson administration. Some of it he asked for. Some he did not. He rode roughshod over the military. He was a ruthless and arrogant administrator.

He has been wrong many times.

Some of his economics involved more careful manipulation of figures than lasting results. The country is still paying for his folly in approving the FII plane against the advice of the military leaders.

He has repeatedly forecast Vietnam war successes which did not materialize.

McNamara opposed escalation of the bombing in the Vietnam war.

President Johnson overrode him on this.

Oddly enough the liberals, who are the most violently opposed to this country's Vietnam involvement, have long urged that he be removed from his cabinet position.

Now that he is leaving he may be replaced by a secretary of defense more in sympathy than he with widening the war.

The most enduring, positive contribution that of defense was in firmly establishing civilian control over the military.

This is desirable and much of the credit will go for refining the procedure. He stoutly insisted on it.

In this he has smoothed the way for his successors in the difficult post. It is an important contribution to the national welfare.

SENSITIVE EARS

In Chicago, when Lilly B. Johnson put a nickel in a jukebox and got his tune right away, a stranger who had already put in a nickel pulled out a .38 revolver and shot Johnson in the neck. In Andover, Mass., William Albert Trow willed West Parish Congregational Church $5,000, specified that it was to be used in part for eliminating "motor and other noises" from the church organ.

TAXES FROM ALL OVER

The Tax Institute of America will discuss one of its favorite subjects when it holds a symposium on federal-state-local tax relationships in Washington starting Wednesday, Nov. 29. The relationships are purely competitive in nature. All three levels of government tap the same tax sources, and there is a minimum of coordination among them.

Although President Johnson's proposal for a 10 per cent surtax on income seems all but dead, Social Security taxes will be raised starting Jan. 1. Moreover, 1967 state legislative sessions have brought new or increased major taxes in a score of states. According to the Tax Foundation, "Enactions of new major taxes together with rate increases add close to $2.5 billion (8.5 per cent) to state revenues from major taxes at current levels of economic activ- that, even in this most murder- wife with both hands in the colity."

Kansas and North Carolina were the only two states to depart from the prevailing pattern in 1967; both reduced income taxes. Kansas did so by reducing the tax rate on the first $2,000 of taxable income and by lowering the withholding which he seems to want to be. temporary cross currents are due to the decline of spruce gum. Time was, half a century ago, when a lad laid in a winter's supply come Novem-

A century ago the commercial spruce gum industry was important. Professional gum pickers went into the woods and harvested the crop. It was cooked, cut, and wrapped and sold in drugstores, four sticks for a nickel.

A farm boy, however, was not interested in the commercial product. He knew certain spruce trees in the woodland that were a dependable source. Foresighted youths went into the woods in Spring and made cuts just below a branch.

From these cuts gum would ooze during the summer, and in the late autumn one could harvest sizable chunks of the amber-colored product.

One does not claim that he did not need a long stick or two of the red paper covered gum from the candy counter in the general store. But when finances were tight, resources went for jaw-breakers, hard-sugar candies or Gibraltars. Spruce gum did not require coin of the realm.

A moderate-size wad helped pass the hours in District School when a lad was waiting his turn to come to the front of the room to recite the capitals of the states east of the Mississippi.

It may be that teacher knew what was going on. But in the days when a teacher taught nine grades and was a sympathetic friend, she overlooked certain situations.

We do not know how many of today's nature citizens found solace in spruce gum. But we believe the resinous secretion of the evergreens played a pleasant role in the era when men were satisfied to go through life at eight miles an hour behind a sleek MORGAN ROADER.

Col. Harry Dudley tells about an incident that disturbed Satchel Paige, back about 1948.

Ol' Satch' saw on the sports page a story which said he owned a big red automobile with "The McNamara made to his country as secretary World's Greatest Pitcher" lettered on the door. "That story ain't so," Satch complained to his manager. "I never owned a red car in my life. It's maroon."

For the benefit of my wise and learned friends of the coffee table I pass along a sure-fire formula for winning a lawsuit, as gleaned from "The Long Lost Friend," a book published in 1819 by John George Hohman. It was known, among the Pennsylvania Dutch, as "The Pow-Wow Book," and it contained secrets of the ages for health, welfare and security.

Under the heading "How To Gain A Lawful Suit," the instruction reads:

"If any one has to settle any just claim by way of a lawsuit, let him take some of the largest kind of sage and write the names of the 12 Apostles on the leaves, and put them in his shoes before entering the courthouse, and he shall certainly gain the suit."

"The Pow-Wow Book" does not promise that the Supreme Court will uphold a verdict gained in this manner, but some say the high court has employed some quaint reasoning in its decisions of recent years.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The departure of Robert S. McNamara as defense secretary will be mourned by almost no one in the United States.

This observation, however, is not a fair measure of McNamara's worth in the office.

The Vietnam war is not popular and McNamara has long been a target of Americans who dislike the involvement. He has been the foremost target for criticism in the Johnson administration. Some of it he asked for. Some he did not. He rode roughshod over the military. He was a ruthless and arrogant administrator.

He has been wrong many times. Some of his economics involved more careful manipulation of figures than lasting results. The country is still paying for his folly in approving the FII plane against the advice of the military leaders.

He has repeatedly forecast Vietnam war successes which did not materialize.

McNamara opposed escalation of the bombing in the Vietnam war.

President Johnson overrode him on this.

Oddly enough the liberals, who are the most violently opposed to this country's Vietnam involvement, have long urged that he be removed from his cabinet position.

Now that he is leaving he may be replaced by a secretary of defense more in sympathy than he with widening the war.

The most enduring, positive contribution that McNamara made to his country as secretary of defense was in firmly establishing civilian control over the military.

This is desirable and much of the credit will go for refining the procedure. He stoutly insisted

In this he has smoothed the way for his successors in the difficult post. It is an important contribution to the national welfare.

SENSITIVE EARS

In Chicago, when Lilly B. Johnson put a nickel in a jukebox and got his tune right away, a stranger who had already put in a nickel pulled out a .38 revolver and shot Johnson in the neck. In Andover, Mass., William Albert Trow willed West Parish Congregational Church $5,000, specified that it was to be used in part for eliminating "motor and other noises" from the church organ.

TAXES FROM ALL OVER

The Tax Institute of America will discuss one of its favorite subjects when it holds a symposium on federal-state-local tax relationships in Washington starting Wednesday, Nov. 29. The relationships are purely competitive in nature. All three levels of government tap the same tax sources, and there is a minimum of coordination among them.

Although President Johnson's proposal for a 10 per cent surtax on income seems all but dead, Social Security taxes will be raised starting Jan. 1. Moreover, 1967 state legislative sessions have brought new or increased major taxes in a score of states. According to the Tax Foundation, "Enactions of new major taxes together with rate increases add close to $2.5 billion (8.5 per cent) to state revenues from major taxes at current levels of economic activity."

Kansas and North Carolina were the only two states to depart from the prevailing pattern in 1967; both reduced income taxes. Kansas did so by reducing the tax rate on the first $2,000 of taxable income and by lowering the withholding rate. North Carolina increased personal exemptions from $300 to $600 and introduced exemptions for taxpayers with children in colleges and for those 65 years of age or older, all incomes over $10,000 a year, Sweden have found the children friendly to the big cattlemen of State and local authorities usually display more imagination than the federal government in levying taxes. For example, a parish in Louisiana this year imposed a $100 "privilege-tax" on fortune tellers and mediums. Texas may have topped with its tax, effective next May 1, on personal debt.

It may be over-simplification to assert contemporary cross currents are due to the decline of spruce gum. Time was, half a century ago, when a lad laid in a winter's supply come Novem-

A century ago the commercial spruce gum industry was important. Professional gum pickers went into the woods and harvested the crop. It was cooked, cut, and wrapped and sold in drugstores, four sticks for a nickel.

A farm boy, however, was not interested in the commercial product. He knew certain spruce trees in the woodland that were a dependable source. Foresighted youths went into the woods in Spring and made cuts just below a branch. From these cuts gum would ooze during the summer, and in the late autumn one could harvest sizable chunks of the amber-colored product.

One does not claim that he did not need a long stick or two of the red paper covered gum from the candy counter in the general store. But when finances were tight, resources went for jaw-breakers, hard-sugar candies or Gibraltars. Spruce gum did not require coin of the realm. A moderate-size wad helped pass the hours in District School when a lad was waiting his turn to come to the front of the room to recite the capitals of the states east of the Mississippi.

It may be that teacher knew what was going on. But in the days when a teacher taught nine grades and was a sympathetic friend, she overlooked certain situations.

We do not know how many of today's nature citizens found solace in spruce gum. But we believe the resinous secretion of the evergreens played a pleasant role in the era when men were satisfied to go through life at eight miles an hour behind a sleek MORGAN ROADER.

Col. Harry Dudley tells about an incident that disturbed Satchel Paige, back about 1948.

Ol' Satch' saw on the sports page a story which said he owned a big red automobile with "The World's Greatest Pitcher" lettered on the door. "That story ain't so," Satch complained to his manager. "I never owned a red car in my life.

As a matter of historical fact, however, there is nothing irreligious about Xmas. The X in Xmas is really the Greek letter and was originally employed to mean Christ or Christian. For the benefit of my wise and learned friends of the coffee table I pass along a sure-fire formula for winning a lawsuit, as gleaned from "The Long Lost Friend," a book published in 1819 by John George Hohman. It was known, among the Pennsylvania Dutch, as "The Pow-Wow Book," and it contained secrets of the ages for health, welfare and security.

Under the heading "How To Gain A Lawful Suit," the instruction reads:

"If any one has to settle any just claim by way of a lawsuit, let him take some of the largest kind of sage and write the names of the 12 Apostles on the leaves, and put them in his shoes before entering the courthouse, and he shall certainly gain the suit."

"The Pow-Wow Book" does not promise that the Supreme Court will uphold a verdict gained in this manner, but some say the high court has employed some quaint reasoning in its decisions of recent years.

TAX COMMISSION TO DECIDE GREYHOUND BUS

ASSESSMENT JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. -- The Missouri Tax Commission will decide by mid-December whether Greyhound Bus Lines should be assessed for more than the few buses which they now have on county tax rolls in Missouri, according to Commissioner in Kansas City and Springfield and will be wrapped up within the next two weeks in St. Louis. Although no finding can be made until the hearings are completed, Davis said, "We think we have discovered something." He added that they would have a complete picture after viewing the evidence presented in St. Louis. Missouri Revised Statutes, 1965 Supplement, provides under corporate property assessment that "all motor vehicles which are the property of (a) corporation and which are subject to regulation, shall be assessed for tax purposes in the county in which the motor vehicles are based."

A Greyhound attorney and dispatcher have contended in prior hearings that their company's buses are all dispatched from Texas, and, therefore, should not be assessed in any Missouri coun-

Davis explained that the commission is concerned only with those buses which are hearings into the number of based in and dispatched from Missouri, not all of the Greyhound buses on the highways in the state. But this should still be a considerably larger number than are now being as-

PATROL LACKS 100

FOR FULL STRENGTH A new class of Missouri Highway Patrolmen will graduate Dec. 22 from its school in Rolla, and the patrol is already seeking more applicants to begin another class Feb. 1. Even with the new class, however, the patrol will be under full strength by 90 to 100 men, according to Maj. quarters office in Jefferson City.

The patrol has an authorized strength of 750 men, but the new class will bring the current total to only 657, Berglund said.

A major factor which has slowed recruiting is the right job market for qualified men in the age brackets of 21 to 33 which the patrol is seeking. Berglund explained that many of the qualified men in the state are now serving in the armed forces.

In addition, the patrol still cannot compete with higher paying jobs in business and industry, he said. Applicants must meet the qualifications of age; weight must be proportional to size; they cannot have any tattoos; they must be between 5'9" and 6'3"; and they must have been a resident tax payer of Missouri for at least three years. Applications may be made at any of the nine regional headquarters offices in the state. Following this, the patrol administers an examination, and if the applicant qualifies, a background check is made before he is accepted for the school.

Armed Services Leave Mother Of 3 All Alone

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) -Julia Stillwell's husband and three sons will miss Christmas at their North Carolina home this year because all four are in the armed services-two in Vietnam and another on his way to the combat zone.

T. Sgt. William R. Stillwell retired from the Air Force in 1963 after 23 years service. He re-enlisted and volunteered for combat duty as the Vietnam war escalated and after his two oldest sons were drafted into the Army last year.

and Bobby Stillwell, 20, received orders this week to depart for the combat zone.

Jack Stillwell, 18, enlisted in the Army Monday.

Mrs. Stillwell, who makes her home at Rt. 2, Goldsboro, said her husband told her in a recent letter: "Maybe Billy and I can be together for Christmas, since you will have the other two boys." He had not learned of Bobby's orders or Jack's enlist-

Mrs. Stillwell says she has occasional pangs of loneliness but refuses to complain. Her sacrifice, she says, is small when compared to the sacrifices made by her husband and sons and other Americans fighting in Southeast Asia.

She said Billy, in his most recent letter, bolstered her courage when he wrote: "If you could just see what we are fight. ing for here, you would be able to understand this war. We're so lucky to be living in a free country."

Dear Ann Landers: Please say a word about airline pilots who think they are disc jockeys. I travel a lot and I'm sick and tired of those chatty fellows up front who sound as if they are auditioning for a talk show. Thanks a lot. - TWO

BOURBONS TO BUFFALO Dear Buffalo: I'm with you. I enjoy hearing the pilot give the passengers a friendly hello after take-off. It's reassuring to know there's somebody up there. But after we get off into the wild blue yonder I'd just as soon he tended to his navigation. Dear Ann Landers: As the mother of three children I am gravely concerned about what is happening to morality and simple decency in this country. Yesterday I went to the market to buy the week's groceries. I purchased some breakfast cereal with lettering on the box indicating "surprises for the kids inside." When I reached home I decided to check out the "surprises." This is what I found: An assortment buttons which read, "My mother is a swinger," "Send your parents to camp" and

"God is not dead, he just doesn't want to get involved." I telephoned the manager of the market and asked him if he knew what was in the cereal boxes. He said, "Yes, but-tons. All the kids are wear-ing them." I told him MY would not be wearing because the buttons, them in my opinion, were atrocious. He replied, "Those buttons are mild compared with some I've seen. Yesterdaya woman came into the store wearing a button which read, "Lee Harvey Oswald, where are you now when we need you?" Please tell me, Ann Landers, am I a batty old woman or are these buttons an insult to the dignity of decent people?--CONNECTICUT YANKEE

Dear Connecticut: The buttons in the cereal box are, to my way of thinking, not amusing and in bad taste. Why on earth the cereal company it's smart to encourage kids to ridicule parents and make jokes about God

BY JACK STRAUSS, L.L.D.

Harold stood absolutely bewildered before a minister as his newly acquired wife suddenly disappeared. While he had married her for better or for worse, it turned out to be not for long. As soon as the minister had pronounced them one, she immediately subtracted her one-half and made a beeline for her parental home and refused to have anything further to do with open-mouthed bridegroom. In fact, she didn't even take the trouble to appear in court when Harold finally sued to annul the marriage on the grounds of fraud. "She tricked and deceived me," he complained in court. "It doesn't take a Houdini to figure out that she never intended to be married to me. I paid two bucks, but I didn't get a wife."

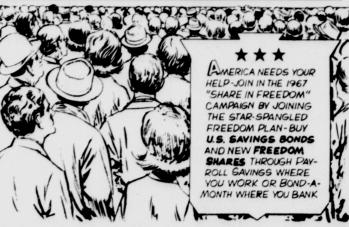

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant brideless Harold an annulment?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that there was no proof that his "bride" had acted in bad faith in getting married. To annul a marriage for fraud, he pointed out, depends upon deceit prior to the marriage. And, in this case, he said, Harold's bride could have changed her mind about being married after the ceremony.

loo young to drive,

. . . not too young to steal a car. Every 60 seconds someone steals a car. Who does the stealing? Teen-agers mostly. Many less than sixteen, 64% less than 18. Why do they steal? Joyrides chiefly. Dangerous joyrides when you know that stolen cars have 200 times more accidents than other cars. Who makes it easy for them? You do. 76% of stolen cars were left unlocked. Nearly half also had ignition keys in them. It's easy to say the teen-agers are irresponsible, but so are you.

Don't help a good boy go bad. Lock your car. Take your keys.

New telephone directory being delivered

The new Sikeston-Morehouse telephone directory is now being delivered. In addition to the usual terrific cast of characters, the new book has a new plot.

What's new? The telephone numbers.

Exchange names (such as HObart and HUbbard) are gone. Numbers have taken their place. For example, KLondike 5-2368 is now 555-2368. It's part of the nationwide change to All Number Calling (ANC). Already, about three-fourths of the nation's phones have all-numeral numbers.

No changes are required in the way you dial a call. Just dial the number as it's listed and your call will zip through. Matter of fact, dialing is even faster and easier with only numbers to look for on the dial.

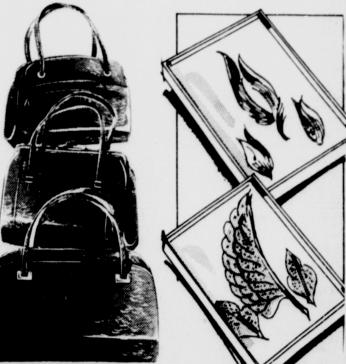

You'll also find ANC ends confusion between letters and figures (such as I and one, O and zero) and between central office names that sound alike. This means fewer "wrong numbers"-something we can all do without.

We think you'll like All Number Calling.

By the way, when you receive your new directory, take a minute to look through the Information pages at the front of the book. They're packed with information to help you get more out of your telephone service.

New telephone directory being delivered

The new Sikeston-Morehouse telephone directory is now being delivered. In addition to the usual terrific cast of characters, the new book has a new plot.

What's new? The telephone numbers. Exchange names (such as HObart and HUbbard) are gone. Numbers have taken their place. For example, KLondike 5-2368 is now 555-2368. It's part of the nationwide change to All Number Calling (ANC). Already, about three-fourths of the nation's phones have all-numeral numbers.

No changes are required in the way you dial a call. Just dial the number as it's listed and your call will zip through. Matter of fact, dialing is even faster and easier with only numbers to look for on the dial.

You'll also find ANC ends confusion between letters and figures (such as I and one, O and zero) and between central office names that sound alike. This means fewer "wrong numbers"—something we can all do without.

We think you'll like All Number Calling.

By the way, when you receive your new directory, take a minute to look through the Information pages at the front of the book. They're packed with information to help you get more out of your telephone service.
